Dear Friends:

We are attempting to, as you may be aware, release lists at least weekly of businesses in YES counties which can be targetted for boycotting.

Our problem with El Paso County (well, the problem relevant to this anyway, we have lots of problems with El Paso County - smirk) is that with our limited manpower and access to information all we come up with are local installations of national companies:

MCI

TRW

Ford

Apple

} to name a few

We were fully prepared to call for a boycott of MCI. However, we caught a tremendous amount of flack, especially out of the groups in New York and Los Angeles, who said "but AT&T, SPRINT and all the other long distance carriers have significant presence in Colorado as well...it won't wash, no one will boycott MCI, it just doesn't make any sense."

How can a private individual boycott Martin Marietta?

We need some direction from you guys in the way of research. We need you help and we need your help now.

All we are asking for is, because you have more volunteers (and because they are more enthusiastic than people are here), a list of companies which:

a) supported either financially or by endorsement Amendment 2

b) produce something that is marketed outside Colorado and is not necessarily tied to a company with facilities in other states - in other words, it's a "COLORADO" company

To keep the momentum of the boycott up, we need to release another list no later than today or tomorrow. If we don't hear from you today, we will skip El Paso county for yet another week.

Please, please, help us out. Remember, there are actually only 5 of us trying to coordinate this entire effort at BCI. Two of us solely handle the media. One of us does nothing but track dollars lost and verify information. One of us does nothing but respond to requests for information. One of us does nothing but administer the office. We do not have anyone to do research and we are begging you to help us.
